Dear Parent

Re: Mathematics Revision

This week all Year 11 pupils will be introduced to a new function of Hegarty.com called MemRi by their Maths teacher.

It is an easy to use tool that designs tasks tailored to student's needs, based upon their prior performance. The software will specifically target areas that students have been less successful on, testing and consolidating them. This will have a real impact on individual learning needs that students have. Each question is linked to a video designed to support students if they are having trouble completing it.

It is easy to access – after logging into Hegarty.com there is a button labelled 'revision' in the top toolbar. All workings for tasks completed should be shown in blue Hegarty books in exactly the same way that current home learning tasks are.

We will be stressing to all pupils that revision needs to start now in preparation for both the upcoming mock exams and the GCSE exams next year. The Maths department will be using MemRi to support this and will set goals on how frequently MemRi is used.

MemRi and Hegarty.com are both 'open ended' resources. Student's can utilise these as often as they like so please point them towards the website whenever you are looking for some extra work they can do to support their revision, even when their set amount of work has been completed.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Yours sincerely
